Editor's Note

It is with great pleasure that we publish Combined Volume 3-4 of the Nazrul University Law Review (NULR), an annual blind peer-reviewed journal published by the Faculty of Law, Jatiya Kabi Kazi Nazrul Islam University. This volume comprises scholarly articles that address a broad range of contemporary legal issues of national and international significance.

The articles published in this issue explore diverse themes, including human rights, constitutional law, environmental justice, criminal justice, international law, citizenship, educational rights, biodiversity protection, and compensation law. Several contributions focus on the protection of vulnerable communities, examining issues such as the rights of the Palestinian people, human trafficking from Bangladesh, the rights of women prisoners, female criminality, and the educational rights of the Munda community. These studies highlight the continuing importance of legal frameworks in promoting justice, equality, and human dignity.

The Editorial Board extends its sincere appreciation to the authors, reviewers, and all those who contributed to the publication of this volume. Their dedication and scholarly efforts have made this issue possible. Opinions expressed in the articles, however, are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Editorial Board.

We hope that the articles published herein will stimulate further research, enrich legal discourse, and contribute to the development of law, policy, and justice in Bangladesh and beyond.
